I understand that this proposed rule change would restrict option trading in retirement accounts. I 65 years old and my wife is 63. We live on a fixed income. Since retiring in 2000, I have been able to generate several thousand dollars (net of losses) from trading options in our retirement accounts. This has been a wonderful supplement to our income and has allowed us to remain independent. Please don't hamstring our ability to generate some additional income by conservative use of options in our retirement accounts.

Thank you, Jerome Salyers
